AN UNCONSTITUTIONAL TAX.

The Associated Press failed to make note of and transmit to this coast an important decision rendered by the United States Supreme Court on the 18th instant. This decision is to the effect that all laws and ordinances imposing a license upon commercial travelers, commonly called drummers, from other States are unconstitutional and void. Nevada has such a law upon her statute books and considerable revenue has been derived from this source. The following is the full text of the decision.

No. 741—Samuel A. Walling vs The People of the State of Michigan.—In error to the Supreme Court of Michigan.—In June, 1863, Walling, the plaintiff in error, was prosecuted in the Police Court of Grand Rapids, Michigan, under a State law imposing a tax upon persons engaged in the business of selling liquor in that State to be shipped from any other State. He was a "drummer" for the firm of Cavanaugh & Co., of Chicago, and he was charged in one count with selling whisky at wholesale without a license, and in another with soliciting and taking orders for a sale without a license. He was convicted and sentenced to pay a fine and was imprisoned in default of payment. He appealed to the County Circuit Court, in which the case was tried by a jury and found guilty. The case was carried to the Supreme Court of Michigan, which decided against Walling. The question in the case is whether the statute under which Walling was prosecuted is repugnant to the Constitution of the United States. The Court held, Judge Bradley delivered the opinion, that a discriminating tax imposed by a State operating to the disadvantage of the products of other States when introduced into the first mentioned State is in effect a regulation in restraint of commerce among the States, and as such is a usurpation of the power conferred by the Constitution upon the Congress of the United States. The Supreme Court of Michigan held that the tax imposed by the Act is an exercise of the police power of the State for the discouragement of the use of intoxicating liquors and the preservation of the health and morals of the people. The Supreme Court of the United States holds that this would be a perfect justification of the Act if it did not discriminate against the citizens and products of other States and thus usurp one of the prerogatives of the national legislature. The Court concludes its opinion as follows: "We think that the Act in question operates as a regulation of commerce among the States in a matter within the exclusive power of Congress, and that it is for this reason repugnant to the Constitution of the United States and void. The judgment of the Supreme Court of Michigan is reversed, and the case remanded with instructions to take such proceedings as may not be inconsistent with this opinion." The Chief Justice did not sit in the case or take any part in it.

The Enterprise adds Michigan is only one of several States which have required license fees of drummers, and many a city has taken up the policy. These licenses have not been levied for revenue only. They have been assessed for the purpose of helping the local trade. And this is precisely what the Constitution designed to prevent. It contemplated the imposition of duties upon foreign commerce with a view to both revenue and protection, but intended to establish absolute free trade between our own people. The sort of legislation swept aside by the decision violated the spirit and is in fact of the Constitution. At that time trade in Europe was subject to innumerable interruptions. Not only did nations discriminate against each other, but petty States and mere counties, as we would class them, had customs duties. The fathers of the republic proposed to protect home interests from injurious foreign competition, but the home interests themselves must know no State lines. No feature of the Constitution more clearly establishes the wisdom of its framers than the one which drew and forever established this distinction between inter State and foreign commerce.

The recent purchase of the Monitor mine, at Taylor, places Capt. Frank Drake, a Republican, in charge. Heretofore Senator Briggs has controlled the mine in the interest of the Democratic party, and thereby elected himself Senator.

The Committee on Pensions has reported favorably on a bill to pension all soldiers and sailors of the Mexican war at $8 per month.

Senators Frye and Hale, of Maine, are opposing the confirmation of the new Collectors of Boston and Portland.

A Prediction That Blaine will Again Be Nominated

New York, January 25.—J. S. Montgomery of Portland, Or., who was an original and active Blaine man at the last Republican National Convention, was asked yesterday about the present political ideas of the Republicans on the Pacific coast, and replied: "They are already looking ahead to 1888. There is only one man to nominate—James G. Blaine. The force of circumstances would require that he should be renominated. The Democrats will renominate President Cleveland. There is a great deal of bitterness against him in his own party, but they cannot refuse him a renomination. I have just spent a week in Washington. Democratic members of Congress have cursed Cleveland before me until I thought they would lift the roof, but I told them they would be obliged to put him up again. There answer has been that he could not be elected. In this I agree with them. His renomination would carry with it Blaine's. Blaine would get all the Irish vote another time. The entire Pacific coast will be again for Blaine, as enthusiastically as ever."

Three Territories Claiming for Admission into the Union.

A Washington dispatch says: Three Territories are claiming for admission as States—Dakota, Washington and Montana. The bill to divide the Territory of Dakota upon the line of the 46th parallel, and to admit the southern portion as a State, is already before the Senate, and the Senators to speak for the anticipated State are now here awaiting a decision to membership in the upper House of Congress. The bill to admit Washington Territory as a State will be reported to the Senate, and it is understood that there is no objection to the admission of Montana although the statistics as to the population are not so full and complete as could be wished, still a bill will probably be reported, and it will then be left to the Senate and the House to decide as to what will be done in the case. The report, however, that leaders of both parties had reached an agreement to admit these three Territories as States, is without foundation, so far as can be learned. Senator Harrison, Chairman of the Committee on Territories in the Senate and who would be likely to know of such an arrangement if any had been made, says he has heard nothing. It is understood that the Democrats are willing to vote for the admission of Dakota more than they were when the subject was first presented. They think that by a judicious use of federal patronage, and through the proper administration of the land laws, it will not be a difficult thing to bring the new State into the Democratic fold. It is asserted that the people will naturally desire to stand well with the Administration, and that, though Republican now, when it is found that the present dominant party then can have no control of Government patronage, there will be a change of sentiment, which if discreetly handled, can work a revolution in party politics there. On the other hand, it is claimed that the rulings of Commissioner Sparks, of the General Land Office, have excited the most intense feeling against the Administration, which no amount of public patronage can overcome. People from all the Territories who visit Washington speak in terms of strong indignation of the effects of the rulings of the Land Office, and the inconvenience, and in many cases positive loss, which have resulted to settlers therefrom.

A Fortune in Diamonds

The New York Journal's Washington special says: It is being currently reported in social circles that a diamond broker has just bought in Washington a $40,000 diamond necklace, to fill an order for the wife of a private citizen, whose name the broker will not give. The necklace has forty-one blue white stones, and it is said to be the largest collection of absolutely perfect gems that has ever been made in this country. The central gem, and the only odd one, is seven carats in weight and cost $2,500. The rest are all exact pairs of graduated sizes, and the smallest ones cost $400 each.

New Life for the Comstock Lode

The San Francisco Bulletin says: There is a prospect of a renewal of mining activity on the Comstock. The day of big bonanzas may be past forever, and the depth to which exploration has been carried without finding any new deposits of high grade ore, taxes the resources of the mining engineer and machinist to provide the facilities for carrying on work on the lower levels. It is well known, however, that in many of the mines of the Comstock large bodies of low-grade ore exist, which could be made to pay if the expenses of reduction were sufficiently decreased. This has been the problem of late years, and in its solution many reforms in the operation of the mines have been put into effect. At first a cry was for a reduction in the wages of miners, but the vigorous and united opposition of the Miners' Union prevented any overt action in that direction. It was impressed upon Superintendents and managers that reform was needed in other departments of the business than in cutting down the hard-earned wages of the miners. The result has been a general enforcement of an economy foreign to the flashy days of the Comstock. Expensive, ornamental Superintendents have become a thing of the past, and practical men at reasonable salaries have taken their places. Office expenditures have been reduced, various leaks stopped, and mining on the Comstock practically brought down to a strict business basis. Still the necessary cost of producing bullion remains high, although some ground was profitably worked which could not have been touched under the old order of things. Improvements in reduction processes now promise to accomplish the work begun by pruning expenses. A new concentrator was recently put in operation in one of the mills, which so decreases the work of the batteries that it is believed several dollars a ton will be saved in reducing ore to bullion. Such a margin will give new life to the old lode. There are millions of tons of low-grade ore which will be worth milling if this new process proves as successful as present prospects indicate.

If this expected revival should be followed by a renewal of the reckless speculation, which formerly drew all classes of the community into its dizzy vortex, its value might be doubted, but that is not probable. The nature of the work to be done under the new conditions, while favorable to sustained efforts and legitimate business methods, will not encourage speculation. The ground is known and no fascinating uncertainties lie awaiting the touch of the diamond drill. It is simply a humdrum operation of taking out and reducing so many tons of ore a day at an average very moderate profit to the ton. It will make more work for hundreds of industrious men on the Comstock, and will add steadily to the world's stock of bullion, besides putting legitimate gains into the pockets of stockholders and managers, out the glorious chances which formerly endeared the old lode to Pine street will be absent. Better so! San Francisco and California have entered upon an industrial era in which hard work and good judgment will bring them reasonable rewards. The mad excitement of mining stock gambling can have no proper place in the new order of things, but legitimate mining will join hands with agriculture, manufactures and commerce to uphold the prosperity of the Pacific Coast.

Blaine on Silver.

Referring to the gossip about Blaine's position on the money question the New York Tribune says, editorially: He is not a monometalist. He believes in the coinage of silver, and favors a double standard. He demands perfect harmony of coinage values. He opposes an inferior coin, whether it be a gold dollar that is less intrinsically than a current silver one, or a silver dollar less than a rich metal one of the same generic name. That is Blaine's attitude, and a very sensible, honest attitude it is.

Chinese Immigration Increasing.

The Bulletin prints a statement in which it is shown that up to December 31 of last year the total number of Chinese arriving at the port of San Francisco since the passage of the Chinese Restriction Act, in 1882, was 18,699. The article then goes on to show that during the period of restriction the arrivals have increased each year, and the following figures are represented to substantiate the statement. In 1883 the total arrivals were 3,014, in 1884 there were 6,602 and in 1885 the number had increased to 9,050.

Judge Brewer of the U. S. Circuit Court at Denver, has decided in favor of the defendants, in the case of the Government vs. Maxwell and others, who it was claimed had obtained by fraud, titles to 1,700,000 acres of land in Colorado and New Mexico.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

S. F. Post. The country is sitting up on the back of its chair waiting to see which will win the first throw in the wrestling match—Cleveland or the Senate.

Holding an umbrella in one hand and a wind gauge in the other, the undiscouraged Californian continues to invite the world's attention to our glorious climate.

General Sheridan believes that the army should be relieved of the Signal Service work. As the army doesn't appear to be overworked, we move to lay the suggestion on the table.

John L. Sullivan has issued another challenge, offering to whip any man for from $2,500 to $10,000. Now, then if Mr. Delmas is afraid of Attorney General Marshall he can negotiate to have him knocked out.

At San Jose the other day a magnetic doctor, who, being instigated by the devil, attempted to sorcery the Presbyterian minister, was convicted of disturbing the peace. The San Jose clergy may now be expected to return from the words.

An explosion in a coal pit at Newburgh, West Virginia, has caused the imprisonment of thirty-nine miners, and it is believed that they have all been killed. Mining horrors have been of such frequent occurrence of late that it would seem to require more courage to go down in a coal mine than to go into battle.

The Secretary of War has submitted to the President the report of the Fortification Board, which estimates that $126,000,000 will be required to establish a good system of coast defenses and recommends the appropriation by this Congress of $21,000,000 to secure the necessary plant for the construction of such heavy ordnance as will be required. Tilden's "message" is bearing fruit.

The police yesterday raised a seige in Chinatown. Seven highlanders were camped around a house in one of the alleys, occupied by a Mongolian and his wife who did not dare show themselves for fear of being murdered. The scheme was to starve them into willingness to pay for being relieved of the seige. A barbarian colony in which such an incident is possible is a pleasant sort of a thing to have in the center of an American city.

The Onetida Dam Case

The Silver State says: Bob Logan and Ed Emmons, convicted at Sullwater, Churchill county, of blowing up the Onetida mill dam at the sink of the Humboldt, were fined $300 each by Judge McKenney. The dam was blown up in June, 1884, the watchman "Doc" Pollard, alleging that he had been led away and bound by masked men, among whom he recognized Logan and Emmons. The testimony was very conflicting, and while there was no doubt an offense had been committed, some witnesses testified that one of the defendants was at Lovelock and the other at Litton Springs, 40 miles east of Lovelock, at the time the dam was said to have been blown up, while others were positive that both defendants were at Lovelock the night of the day of which the dam was shattered by giant powder.

The dam, which was blown up, was the property of the Onetida M. & M. Co., a New York corporation, which commenced operations by mining in Desert District and building a mill below the Sink of Humboldt, many years ago. The company expended over $200,000 on the dam, mill and mine, and Walter Schmidt, their agent, had his Salt Works at White Plains damaged to a considerable extent by the water from the lake when the dam was broken. He displayed no vindictiveness in the case, however, but wanted the principle established that the property of eastern corporations would be protected by law in Churchill as well as other counties. Judge McKenney, who presided in the District Court, fined the defendants $300 each, and both parties seemed satisfied, as they certainly should be, taking the conflicting testimony into consideration.

John Mackay's Dinner

The New York World says: John Mackay gave a dinner in the Moonish rooms of the Hoffman House on Saturday evening that was a feast worthy of the bright spirits that enjoyed it. He entertained Senator John P. Jones, Roscoe Conkling, Charles Crocker, Col. Robert Ingersoll, Col. Thomas P. Ochiltree and Lawrence Jerome.
